Certification Program Owners Recognized by GFSI

The Global Food Safety Initiative (GFSI) is a coalition launched by the Consumer Goods Forum (CGF), a global alliance of retailers, manufacturers, service providers, and other stakeholders across 70 countries. GFSI's work in benchmarking and harmonisation fosters mutual acceptance of GFSI-recognised certification programmes across the industry and enables a simplified "once certified, recognised everywhere" approach. ## JFS standard allows anyone to aim for international standard food safety management

JFS standards for food manufacturers include JFS-A, JFS-B, JFS-B Plus, and JFS-C standards, which differ in requirements and number of items required by each standard.

They are easy for a wide range of food business operators, regardless of business size, to work on and improve their food safety level step by step.

More and more companies are
acquiring JFS!

Our activities to
hygiene control
came up in conversation.

We felt that factory audits by our business partners have been simplified. By promoting the acquisition of the conformity certification, we feel that our efforts in sanitation management have been well received.

Thinking about the future of the company...

We considered acquiring this certification as a way to prepare for overseas expansion and exports in order to increase the management and awareness of food hygiene among our employees.

Standards that are easy to work to

I felt that obtaining international certification was a big hurdle, but JFS is a standard that can be stepped up, and I felt that it was easy to tackle.
